Another Big Three Meeting Hinted By Truman and Churchill

GERMAN SUBMARINE U-858, which had sunk 16 Allied ships during two and one-half years of preying on Allied vessels in the Atlantic, is pictured as it surrendered in American waters, 42 miles off Cape May, N. J. The U-858, with a crew of five officers and 52 men, became the first Nazi U-Boat to give up in U. S. territorial waters since the capitulation of Germany.

Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman said today that they hoped soon to meet each other and Premier Marshal Stalin around a conference table.
In his statement to reporters in Washington President Truman said he did not believe such a meeting of the Big Three would be held immediately.
Churchill expressed in the House of Commons his desire for a conference, and added that "it would be very odd if such a long, fierce war ended without any settlement even among the victors."
Churchill refused to commit himself on the question of whether Adolf Hitler is dead, declaring that he knew no more "than any other member who reads the newspapers."
He disclosed that during the early part of the war King George VI had practiced daily with a rifle and tommygun and would have joined the men on the firing line if the conflict ever had brought a last-ditch stand in London.
A dispatch from Bolzano, Italy, said the Nazis there, after swagging around for 10 days doing about as they pleased, had been bluntly informed that from now on they would be treated as a defeated army.
For 10 days after the German surrender in Italy on May 2 the Nazis in Bolzano fraternized with civilians, dined in restaurants, catering almost exclusively to German soldiers and drove powerful cars through the streets. Groups of local youths even goose-stepped through the streets for three nights singing Nazi songs.

The situation ended when Col. W. C. Fry of Washington, D. C., assistant commander of the 88th Infantry Division, took over as commandant of the town yesterday. There has been no official explanation as to why the Germans were granted so much liberty during the 10-day period.
In London the United Nations War Crimes Commission announced that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's name was placed on the first list of war criminals in November, 1944. Goering recently surrendered to U. S. Seventh Army troops in Austria.
The surrender of three German submarines has been accepted by American naval forces operating out of New England, an eastern sea frontier announcement disclosed today.
The surrenders bring to four the number of German undersea craft turned over to the United States by their crews since the German collapse in Europe.
In Washington, President Truman declared today that "absolute insurance against German or Japanese rearmament—ever again—comes first with us" in working out a settlement of reparations.
In a formal statement made to his news conference, the president said our Allies are of one mind with the United States on this point.

He made public a list of more than 20 staff members who will accompany Edwin W. Pauley, United States member of the Reparations Commission, and his associate, Dr. Isador Lubin, to Moscow for the meeting of the commission.
Moscow announced today that the Red Army killed or captured 12,770,000 enemy troops in almost four years of war on the Eastern Front and had taken more than 1,230,000 prisoners since Germany's unconditional surrender.

Gold Star mothers and widows of both World Wars are to have a place of honor at the American Legion's annual Memorial Service at Grace Church May 27.

It has long been a custom of the Legion to pay tribute to the community's war dead at special services held in one of the city's churches each year, usually the last Sunday in May. Veterans of the first World War traditionally meet at the hall and attend in a body. It is the Legion's own memorial and comes on the Sunday closest to the national observance of Memorial Day. Since the country was plunged into a second world conflict, veterans of two wars have attended the services.

This year, for the first time, the community's Gold Star mothers and widows of men who gave their lives for their country in both wars have been invited to attend. Each is to be presented with a white carnation by Charles Beard and they are to be ushered to pews reserved for them at the morning service.

While nothing can compensate for the loss of a son or husband, this gesture of reverent sympathy comes from the hearts of those grateful for sacrifices they have made.

Just how many Gold Star mothers and widows there are in the community is not definitely known. Mrs. Emerson Chapman of the Legion Auxiliary has made out a list of them, but because she was afraid the list was incomplete and that any not on it might not understand the omission, she decided not to send cards to them. Rather, she hopes that plans for the service and an invitation to attend it will be spread by personal contact this week. She and other members of the Auxiliary are asking Gold Star mothers and widows to get in touch with her so she may check her list and thus learn how many will attend the services. She explained that she wanted to know how many carnations to order and how many places in the church to reserve. She said she hoped none would feel backward about calling her.

The Gold Star mothers and widows are to meet at Grace Methodist Church in time for the services at 10 o'clock the morning of May 27. Members of the Legion and Auxiliary will show them to their pews and present them with carnations.

As in previous years, the veterans will attend in a body.

'Diabolical' German Atrocities Described in Congress Report

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(P)—A Congressional mission reported today its inspection of German concentration camps forced the conclusion the Nazis carried out a "calculated and diabolical program of planned torture and extermination."
The mission, composed of six senators and six members of the House of Representatives, flew to Europe April 22 and spent most of a fortnight looking over the notorious camps at Dachau, Buchenwald and Nordhausen, Germany.

In their report, the group termed the Nazi program of starvation, torture and unhonored death for slave laborers and political prisoners "no less than organized crime against civilization and humanity."
"Those who were responsible should have meted out to them swift, certain and adequate punishment," the report advocated.
In view, however, of the existence of the Allied War Crimes Commission (Please Turn to Page Two)

Daniels Measure Considered To Generous

By REED D. SMITH

COLUMBUS, May 15.—(P)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche, battling to keep state expenditures within revenues, asserted in a special message to the legislature that passage of the Daniels-Cramer bill would provide schools with $17,243,266 more than they received in 1943-44 and termed the increase "more than reason justifies."

Standing pat on his earlier recommendation, the governor told the House and Senate last night that "the $108,259,208 advocated by me is a reasonable and just" (Please Turn to Page Two)

OHIO EGG SHORTAGE AVERSION PLANNED

Possibility Attributed to Three Reasons

COLUMBUS, May 15.—(P)—The Office of Price Administration said today that it hoped to avert an egg shortage in the 34-county Columbus district by arranging for better distribution of the supply.

Representatives of egg wholesalers conferred yesterday with Henry P. Howe, district OPA price executive.
"We do not have an actual egg shortage as yet," he said, "but three conditions presage a problem we hope to avert by getting a better distribution of our egg supply."
"These conditions are: the current meat supply shortage is causing an increased demand for eggs; demand by the armed forces continues high; the shortage in the eastern part of the country is draining eggs from the district."

The OPA reported that eggs, after selling under ceiling prices recently, now were "pushing at the ceilings."
The problem will be discussed at another meeting within two weeks.

SYNTHETIC NAZI OIL PLANTS MAY LEAD TO OHIO INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(P)—The Nazis may have unwittingly helped the U. S. Bureau of Mines increase its synthetic oil experiments in this country.
Some of the congressmen invited by General Eisenhower to view German prisoner of war camps also visited one or more of the great synthetic oil plants.

Congressmen who have observed how the Nazis did it admit they've been impressed by the possibilities of synthetic production.

Tough Job in Germany!

Occupation Forces Face Country of Sharp Contrasts and Blunt Contradictions

(This is the first of five stories reporting on conditions in Germany and sizing up the job ahead of the occupation armies. They were written by Daniel De Luce, veteran Associated Press correspondent, who has seen the effects of the war in Russia, Poland, Italy and France and has toured hundreds of miles by jeep through occupied German territory.)

By DANIEL DE LUCE
WITH AMERICAN OCCUPATION FORCES ON THE RHINE, May 15.—(P)—Three great enemies face the conqueror on German soil—hunger, disease and the unrepentant spirit of a warlike race.

In sharing the task of occupation with other Allied powers, the United States indefinitely has committed armies totaling approximately 400,000 men. They may stay abroad until it becomes a political issue in the next presidential campaign; they may remain for a generation.

Long term occupation is regarded as a necessity by some high American officers "if we don't want another war in 20 years."

In touring by jeep hundreds of miles from the shell-pocked frontier zone where the first American military government was set up last September to the green heartland where the enemy surrender came this month, a German of razor-sharp contrasts and blunt contradictions is bared. Rural life is almost normal. In the cities and towns there is paralysis if not chaos.

TAX REDUCTIONS OPPOSED BY TRUMAN

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(P)—President Truman declared today that he is opposed to any reduction in taxes until after Japan has been defeated.

The president told his news conference that there can be no reduction—no possible reduction—until after the whole war is over.
He said 85,000,000 bond holders had to be protected and that the only protection lay in continued high taxation.

COAL COMPANY SUE FOR TOO-HIGH PRICES

COLUMBUS, O., May 15.—(P)—The Office of Price Administration today filed a suit in U. S. District Court asking an injunction and treble damages totaling $408 from the Thorn Hill Coal Company of Nelsonville.

The agency alleged the company sold $2,722 tons of coal at $136 over OPA ceiling prices. It also asked the court to enjoin the company from further over-ceiling sales.

FATHERS' DISCHARGE MOVE ON IN CAPITAL

Men With Over Three Children Would Be Eligible

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(P)—A move to force the Army to discharge all men with more than three children began on Capitol Hill today.

Representative Engel (R-Mich.) said he will seek a House vote on the proposition when the annual War Department appropriation bill reached the floor within several weeks.

As a member of the appropriations sub-committee handling Army funds, Engel will ask the committee to write into the bill a ban against payment of funds to any service man who has more than three children. Its acceptance, he said in an interview, would force the Army to discharge such men, since no one can be compelled to serve without compensation.

BEAUTY TREATMENT FOR REFORMATORY

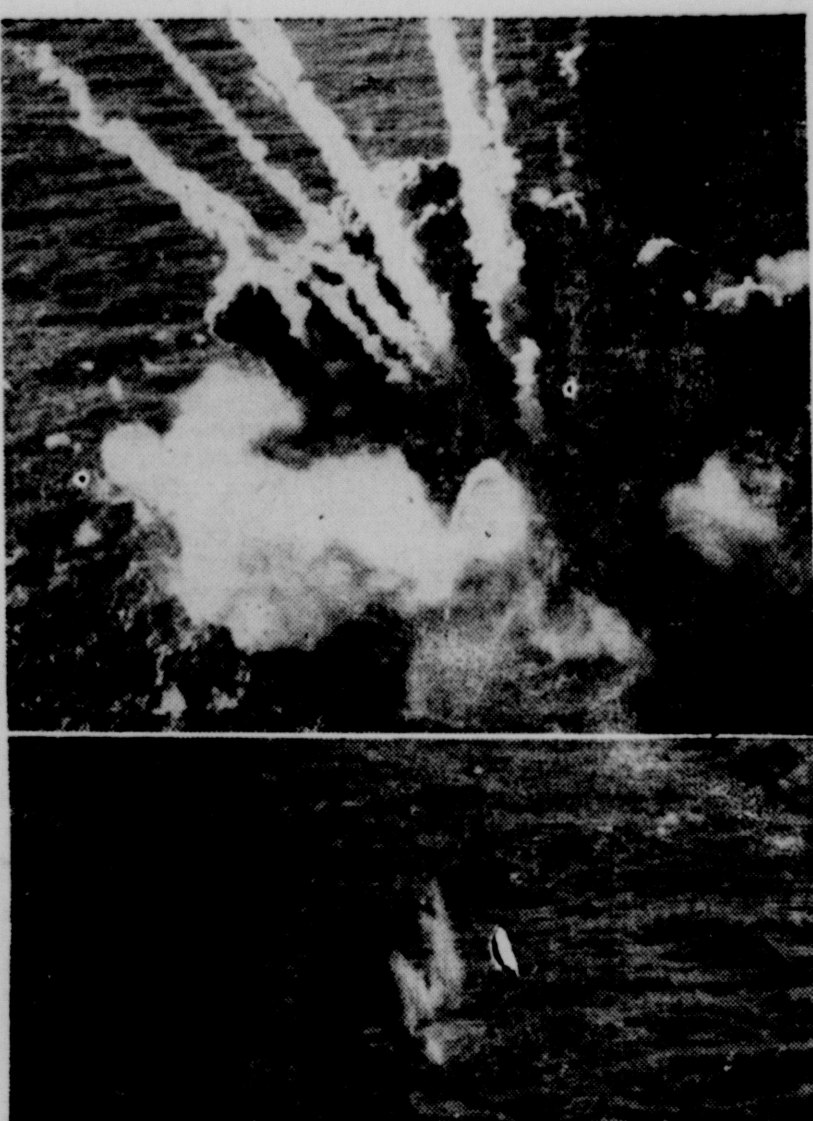

Women Legislators See Penal Beauty Shops

MARYSVILLE, May 15.—(P)—Women members of the Ohio Legislature today had first hand knowledge of the part beauty shops play in the penal philosophy of Mrs. Marguerite Reilly, superintendent of the State Reformatory for women here.

On a tour of the institution yesterday, the legislators spent considerable time in the three shops for inmates, watched them making themselves lovelier, and heard Mrs. Reilly explain:
"If a woman looks nice, she feels nice, and if she feels nice, she acts nicely."

Mrs. Reilly has supervised the reformatory since December, 1935. She has transformed it into what has been termed the "Vassar of United States Penology." The beauty salons were the first ever established in any state prison for women.

Approximately 270 women, 100 of them Negroes, are inmates. Their ages range from 16 to 77.

U.S. Military Government Plan Ready for Germany

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON, May 15.—(P)—The military meaning of the "stern" military government the United States is imposing on Germany in the American occupation zone is found in penalties provided for infractors.

In more than a dozen instances, the death sentence may be imposed. Long imprisonment and heavy fines are provided in others.
Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower drew up the ordinances and penalties as his armies moved into Germany. It is assumed these are the codes under which American occupation is operating.

Three types of military government codes are set up. A general military code may impose any sentence, including death. An intermediate military code may impose imprisonment up to ten years or fines up to $10,000. A summary court can sentence up to one year or fine up to $1,000.

The offenses for which death "or such other penalty" may be imposed include:
Espionage; communication of information which may be dangerous to the security or property of the Allied forces; acting "in defiance or contravention of terms imposed upon Germany"; acts or conduct in support or aid of the Nazi party and its various agencies; killing or assaulting any member of the Allied forces; unlawful possession of firearms and ammunition; aiding in the escape of any person detained by Allied authorities. $5,750 IS WAITING FOR LOST HUSBAND

CINCINNATI, May 15.—(P)—Frank T. Day can collect $5,750 if he calls at the office of the Hamilton County Probate Court within the next six months.

The will of Mrs. Helen L. Day, who had not seen her husband Frank for 10 years prior to her death April 16, makes that provision. Filed in probate court yesterday, it sets forth that half of her $11,400 estate is to go to her husband if he appears to make claim within six months. Otherwise, the entire estate goes to Mrs. Day's three sisters.

Day's last known address was Colorado Springs, Colo.

Nazis Lasted Longer Than Expected After Three Allied Gambles Failed

By JAMES M. LONG
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, May 15.—(P)—As swiftly as the war was won, it can be disclosed now that it took longer than Gen. Eisenhower and his staff had expected—longer by as much as five months.

That was because of the Nazis' decision to fight on after military defeat into final collapse in the heart of the wrecked Reich.
On the basis of strategy and military success was the campaign from the African landings to final victory averaged up to or ahead of schedule.
In Africa, in Italy and on the Western front there were three big gambles, each of which might have shortened the war by months. They were the task force bid to seize Bizerte, the effort at Anzio to chop off all Italy south of Rome, and the Arnhem attempt to flank the German line in the west. None succeeded fully.
The war was won by overwhelming military force and the application of that force brilliantly in classic breakthrough, roll-up and envelopment tactics, all teamed closely with the development and use of the mightiest aerial striking power the world has ever known.

AERIAL ATTACK AGAINST JAPAN GOES INTO LULL

Americans Beat Back Banzai Charges on Mindanao and Aussies Gain on Tarakan

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
By the Associated Press

American ground forces broke through Balete Pass, most stubbornly defended Japanese front in the Philippines, at the price of sobering losses and prepared today for crucial drives on Okinawa Island knowing "the cost may be high."

The air war against the Mikado's home islands appeared to take a momentary lull after yesterday's successful 500 plane Superfortress rain on industrial Nagoya and a two-day carrier attack on southern airfields involving 1,500 sorties, but movements of air force generals clearly indicated greater aerial assaults were in the making.

Air Field Seized

Contrasting with slight local gains reported on every other battlefield, the U. S. 96 Division rolled back the Japanese eastern flank on Okinawa for 2,400 yards to seize Yonabaru air field, and the 25th and 37th Divisions captured treacherous Balete Pass in the northern Philippines to climax a months-long battle.

The pass, a 75 foot defile whose walls were laced with Japanese caves, is the key to Gaganay Valley, breadbasket of still strong enemy forces on northern Luzon Island. The 25th and 37th, moving cautiously through the pass today, were within two miles of a junction at Santa Fe with the 32nd, coming up Villa Verde trail.

Casualties Heavy

Seven thousand Japanese were known to have been killed in the battle for the pass. Officers estimated the figure probably would reach 20,000, American losses, while much smaller, were described as sobering.

Equally costly has been the Sixth Marine Division's painful advance on Naha, prime objective of the Okinawa campaign. The rubber-strewn city overhung with the stench of death and great plumes of smoke from twelve fires is "in its death throes," reported Associated Press War Correspondent Al Dopking, "and it is dying hard."

Only noteworthy advance yesterday on Okinawa, 325 miles south of Japan, was on the east coast. Two companies of the 96th captured strategic, 480-foot conical hill, permitting other units of the division to roll 2,400 yards down the coast and seize the fourth air field of the campaign.

The 24th Division beat off six banzai charges on Mindanao in the southern Philippines; Australians made limited gains in Tarakan and New Guinea; British and Indians made local advances in the Burma clean-up; and Chinese were mopped up in the port city of Fochow.

Three Superforts Lost

Three Superforts were lost in the record fire raid on Nagoya, where smoke from blazes started by more than a million fire bombs mingled with thick clouds, obscuring the extent of damage.

SEVERE STORMS STRIKE COUNTY MONDAY NIGHT

Many Trees Blown Down and Heavy Rainfall Ends
Work for Days

A series of heavy electrical, rain, wind and hail storms swept over Fayette County Monday evening and at an early hour Tuesday morning, leaving water standing in the fields, trees broken off or uprooted in many sections, damage to buildings, and some hail damage.

About 7:30 P. M. Monday evening during a storm in the Bloomingburg community, wind unroofed part of the John Browning barn at the intersection of the Columbus and Old Lexington roads, a mile south of Bloomingburg; damaged a silo, destroyed a large shed, and blew Miss Fannie Browning to the ground as she sought to reach the house after removing clothing from a line. She was uninjured.

Sections of the metal roof were hurled through the air for 500 to 600 yards before landing on the ground in a field near the house. A window in the house was blown in.

Other places in the same community felt the effects of the violent wind, but damage was not serious.

Two other storms swept the county between 4 and 5 A. M. Tuesday, and both of these hit the northern part of the county, flooding fields and causing extensive damage to timber.

Trees at South Plymouth and at other places almost entirely across the county were broken off or uprooted, and many limbs twisted off.

In much of the county plowing and planting was delayed for several days by the heavy rainfall, which reached 96 of an inch here and two or three times that much in parts of the county.

Hail fell in many localities.

DIABOLICAL ATROCITIES IN GERMAN PRISONS DESCRIBED IN REPORT

Commission, the committee said it did not believe any additional agency need be created.

"The agencies now dealing with the problem are responsible and competent and will approach the subject from the standpoint of practical justice in every area and in all categories of crimes that may be involved," the report said.

In general, it recounted the same shocking story of calculated misery and degradation made familiar by scores of articles from the scene.

Treating in detail on the establishment at Buchenwald, the lawmakers said:

"Pictures and descriptions of the conditions at this camp cannot adequately portray what we saw there, and it is only when the stench of the camp is smelled that anyone can have a complete appreciation of the depths of degradation to which the German Nazi government and those responsible for it . . . had dropped in their treatment of those who have failed to embrace the doctrines of the 'Master Race'."

A Macabre detail of the Dachau Camp was related. There "prisoners of distinction," including those with military records, were permitted to kneel on a small boardwalk as they were executed by gunfire. Women and common political prisoners knelt on an earthen bank to receive their death bullets.

"Since we had seen no coffins at other camps visited, we inquired why coffins were used at Dachau, and were informed that these coffins were reserved for prisoners of distinction."

The committee visited Dachau within 48 hours after its liberation by American forces.

"When we arrived there were many prisoners lying dead between the inner and outer barbed wire fences," the legislators said, "apparently shot by the guards."

Lying in rows, were about 300 bodies of those who had died and Concluding its recitation of the damning evidence, the report asserted:

"The committee feels that out of it all justice will emerge, and that through the sickening spectacle which we have witnessed of the degradation to which human beings have been subjected, will come ultimately a firmer realization that men of all nations and all tongues must resist encroachments of every theory and every ideology that debases mankind, and that a more just and enduring peace may arise upon the ruins and from the sacrifices which the human race has endured through one of the most crucial periods of its history."

A clarification of the status of the Doenitz government in the conquered Reich is believed imminent, but until it comes there is no tendency here to regard the Flensburg group as anything more than an instrument of surrender.

Information here is that the Doenitz government is not ruling Germany—the Allies are doing that and are going to continue doing it for some time. But it is serving at least in some respects as a central authority representing the German army and guaranteeing its submission to the Allied powers.

Grand Adm. Karl Doenitz, successor to Hitler; Field Marshal Ernst Busch, last commander in the north; and the rest still are in

The growing Sunnyside service flag soon will be sent to the factory in Columbus where it was made to have additional names—and two gold stars—embroidered on it.

Miss Agnes Kerrigan and Dr. Ruth Teeters will welcome any additional names for the flag. Additions or corrections should be phoned to them immediately so they can be added to the present list. Dr. Teeters' telephone is 9481 and Miss Kerrigan's, 23534.

The names which are to be added to the flag are Joe Oyer, Harry Shaw, James Hart, Robert Cubbage, Thomas Carson, Fred Michael, Charles Mustine, David Young, Ralph Myers, William Myers, Paul Wood, Elza Anderson, Worley Shopshear, Ralph Michael, Virginia Cartwright, Orville Lyons, Franklin Newland, Earl Haggard, Paul Dowder and Donald Hoskins.

The two new gold stars are for Leonard Orr and Tony Seyfang. Altogether there are nine gold stars and 318 names on the flag.

The unconditional surrender of the German forces on the channel islands yielded to the Allies large quantities of arms and equipment, including 15-inch coastal batteries, field pieces, antiaircraft weapons and several small vessels.

In Dublin the conservative Irish Times took issue with Prime Minister Churchill's Sunday speech criticizing Eire's neutrality stand in the war and said it was "an open secret that the Irish Army throughout the war worked in fairly close cooperation with the British general staff."

The newspaper said Prime Minister Eamon De Valera was diplomatically correct in expressing condolences to the German minister on Hitler's reported death, but "from the broader point of view of Ireland's relations with the victorious powers it was a first class blunder."

A British spokesman labeled as "exaggerated" reports published in London that Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia had been ordered peremptorily to withdraw his troops from Istria and the Adriatic port of Trieste.

The spokesman said the position of Britain and the United States that Trieste should remain under Allied control until the peace conference settled its status had been communicated to the Yugoslav government through envoys at Belgrade in an atmosphere of frankness and friendship.

Trieste had been awarded Italy after the first World War. The London Daily Herald said the Italian government of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi had hinted it is ready to resign if Trieste remains under Yugoslav control.

GOV. LAUSCHE IS FIRM ON SCHOOL BILL—SAYS DANIELS TOO GENEROUS

amount" and estimated it would increase by $10,499,266 in the current biennium the $97,759,942 received by local districts in 1943-44 for operating purposes.

He said the bill sponsored by Sens. Albert L. Daniels (R-Highland) and Virgil E. Cramer (R-Lucas) contemplated $115,039,208 for the biennium and that a House education committee amendment extending its effective operation into the 1947-48 biennium would boost the state's contribution to at least $117,156,666.

Another bill by Rep. Walter L. Tarr (R-Hamilton) calling for only $101,439,208 in the biennium was described by Lausche as inadequate.

The governor has indicated he would veto the Daniels bill if it was passed by the House when it comes up for consideration, possibly this week. It already bears Senate approval. A two-thirds vote in both houses would be required to override a veto.

Lausche's message also urged passage of legislation to regulate strip coal mining "to curb the butchery in operation that is being perpetuated" by such operations, and to tax domestic insurance companies the same as out-of-state firms to avoid possible loss of revenues termed discriminatory.

In a breakdown of his school figures, Lausche called attention to the $8,078,416 allocated by a special session last fall.

"My program submitted to the legislature recommended the appropriation of $50,020,000 for 1945, and $54,200,000 for 1946, making a total of $104,220,000 actually to be distributed in the 1945-46 biennium for operating purposes," the governor said.

"To this sum of $104,220,000 must be added the one-half of $8,078,416 which was specifically designated for use in the 1945-46 biennium."

"If this one-half, amounting to $4,039,208, is added to the $104,220,000, it makes a total of $108,259,208 that will be available to local districts for operating purposes in 1945-46."

"While the distribution under the Daniels Bill will be $111,000,000 there must be added to it one-half of the appropriation made by the special session, which is $4,039,208, making a total of $115,039,208 that will be available for operating purposes."

The governor's message also said he had recommended $2,000,000 for rehabilitation, slightly more than the 1943-44 appropriation for that purpose, and asserted more money would be available for local school operations as the result of tax valuation increases which he estimated at ten percent since 1942.

He also called attention to student enrollments which he said dropped from 1,289,000 in 1936-37 to 1,134,000 last year.

The senate last night passed and sent to the house a bill by Sen. George G. Shurtz (R-Coshocton) to permit county commissioners to distribute funds to aid historical societies in their counties, provided they are affiliated with the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society.

A bill was introduced in the senate calling for establishment of a central state office to handle veterans' affairs.

The house passed three bills providing that convicted prisoners escaping from the custody of Bills to permit local subdivisions to submit additional tax levies and bond issues to voters at general and special elections to finance permanent postwar improvements were recommended for passage last night by the senate elections and federal relations committee.

The bills would permit submission of tax levies and bond issues in the November general election or at special elections prior to Aug. 31, 1947, except that they could not be held within 30 days after primary or general elections.

War Penalties

The Germans are beaten, but unrepentant. Even in their humiliation and punishment they remain apparently unconvinced of their wrong-doing. Their attitude seems to be merely that they have lost this time—and maybe the next time it will be different. The criminality of their second great assault on civilization, the monstrous cruelties they have perpetrated, the millions of innocent people they have killed, the destruction they have visited upon many nations, all these seem to mean nothing to them. They have only lost another war, and are merely humiliated by their failure. This fact is clear in the attitude of Gen. Gustav Jodl, who signed the surrender, and other German leaders.

What can be done with such people, in the general effort of good citizens everywhere to create a sane, decent, law-abiding world? Apparently it is necessary to keep not only the military class, but also the German people in general, under strict discipline for a long time to come.

From the world's experience it seems that a quarter-century is not long enough. They may have to be controlled, like so many rebellious and destructive children, for not less than half a century. There can be no more such futile toying with this serious problem as there was after the last world war.

Diseased Meat

The incentive to disastrous inflation, and the selfish disregard of cooperative effort shown by black market operators and their patrons, are not the only bad features. There is a health menace.

Dr. Edwin P. Jordan, associate editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, points out that many serious illnesses can be transmitted to the unsuspecting eaters of meat from diseased cattle.

First and worst of these is undulant fever, whose victims suffer from fever and severe pain which renders them inactive for long periods. It is, so far, incurable.

And second is tuberculosis, whose dangers most Americans know. If caught in time it can be halted and the patient returned to active life, but only after a long, depressing and expensive period of complete rest and treatment.

Government inspection of meat isn't just another bureaucratic idea. It was set up long ago to protect Americans from such menaces to their health. Those who choose to eat meat which has not passed inspection are endangering life and health.

Tax Easement

Thousands of small business men are cheered by suggestions for immediate changes in the federal tax laws, tending to improve their "cash position" and relieving them from excess profits tax.

It is realized, of course, that great wars cannot be fought, and governments kept solvent, without imposing higher taxes than usual; but there is always danger of killing the goose that lays the golden egg, and this can be done even more easily with the "little fellows" than with the big ones.

Not only do many small corporations need relief, but also many business concerns so small that they have no reason for incorporation. Even these have their use and value in the national economy, and in many cases their loss or destruction would seriously discommode larger concerns which they serve in one way and another.

Threat to the World

Hermann Goering, delicately fumbling the ornaments which dangle from his capacious chest, gives a curious world the "low-down" on the great human mystery of Hitler and his gang. Adolf himself, says the gorgeous Reichsmarschal, was narrow and ignorant. Von Ribbentrop was a scoundrel, and Hess was eccentric, but a man of tremendous energy. And so on.

Such comments are interesting, and illuminating in some ways, but obviously come far short of telling the whole story. How was it possible for such a little group of men, none of them distinguished or brilliant, to arrive at the point where they could almost swing the whole world by the tail? Emerging almost from the gutter, in a few years they nearly had the world in their hands, and indeed came near to destroying our present civilizations.

What a congenial story this would have been for Thomas Carlyle, the great historian and essayist of the last century, with his rare grasp of men and their minds! It may take another generation for analysts to do historical and psychological justice to this incredible group of rascals who set the world on fire.

A Nerve Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A PAINFUL condition of the face known as trigeminal neuralgia is one of those stubborn disorders which may require operation for relief.

Just what causes this disorder is not definitely known. It has been treated by injections of large amounts of vitamin B-complex, by cutting a part of the fifth nerve which supplies the face structures, and by injections of alcohol along the nerve.

Doctors Maynard Murray and Eileen O'Ferral of Cincinnati think that trigeminal neuralgia, or tic douloureux as it sometimes is called, may be due to irritation of the fifth nerve as a result of poisoning from infection of the teeth or the bones surrounding the teeth. This infection may come from decayed teeth or from the bone known as the alveolar bone which surrounds the teeth. The infection may extend into the jawbone itself in some instances. These physicians state that a careful examination of the mouth structures will help to tell just what treatment will be needed in these instances. When the gums are reddened and swollen, when there are areas of bone which are tender, or when patients complain of discomfort due to ill-fitting plates some type of surgical procedure may be necessary. None of these things occur when the bone structures are healthy and free from infection.

Twenty-five patients with tic douloureux who had been previously treated medically, surgically or by the dentist without obtaining permanent relief were studied. Following their treatment, which consisted of removal of the alveolar bone plus the ex-

"NEW EVERY MORNING"

Every day is a fresh beginning. Every morn is the world made new.

You who are weary of sorrow and sinning. Here is a beautiful hope for you—A hope for me and a hope for you.

All the past things are gone and over. The tasks are done and the tears are shed. Yesterday's errors let yesterday cover. Yesterday's wounds, which smarted and bled, Are healed with the healing which night has shed.

Let them go, since we cannot relieve them. Cannot undo or cannot atone; God in His mercy receive and forgive them. Only the new days are our own—Today is ours and today alone. Here are the skies all burnished brightly.

Here is the spent earth all reborn; Here are the tired limbs springing lightly To greet the sun and share with the morn

In its chrism of dew and cool of the dawn Every day is a fresh beginning. Listen, my soul, to the glad refrain.

And in spite of old sorrow and sinning And trouble forecasted or possible pain. Take heart with the new day and begin again.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Gail's white coat was rumpled. She was hot and tired. Her office hours today had produced an unusual number of patients. Her practice was suddenly booming, but instead of being pleased, she felt uneasy, as if she were on parade.

People who'd never noticed her before, except to remark that a woman doctor was a freak, had suddenly become aware of her as news of the impending trial spread over Beauchamp.

Yes, that's the one, the woman doctor, she took care of Miss Reyna, that's Howard Thayer's sister, and believe you me, she cured her. They called in Doctor McCormick, I suppose just to make sure everything was going okay, and would you believe it—he didn't know what was wrong with her, and yet he's suing for a whopping big bill.

Gail dismissed her last patients, a mother with a child who needed no medicine but plenty of discipline.

Afterwards, she sat quietly at her desk, looking at the note Amos Niles had sent her by messenger. Apparently he'd been ashamed to face her. They didn't want her at tonight's dinner. And, she suspected, not solely because it was stag but because her presence might offend the great Dr. McCormick.

She answered the telephone at its first ring. Burke Gentry was calling. "Hi, sweetheart," he chortled. "What's new on the fighting front?"

"You'd know more about that than I would."

"I wish they'd kiss and make up," he said, with a trace of annoyance.

"This trial's going to be a three-ringed circus. Have you talked to Reyna again?"

"Look here, I talk to Reyna almost every day! But I can't do anything to stop her—I can't make her pay McCormick's bill." She was getting a little tired of the way everybody, including Burke, assumed she had any influence with Reyna.

"I'm just an innocent bystander," she said crossly.

"But aren't you enjoying it?" he teased.

"On the contrary, you're the one who's having fun. I've no doubt you're even looking forward to cross-questioning me on the witness stand."

"You bet!" Burke answered with relish.

Burke, she thought, was full of contradictions. There was the athlete, the he-man, and the man who'd accept a job that might involve his fiancée, yet still be judicious and unprejudiced about it.

"How about a movie? How about going to one tonight?" he asked.

"You'd better see the new Clark Gable picture. It'll be his last for a long while."

"All right. Why don't you come up about seven? I'll fix us some sandwiches and coffee. I haven't much appetite—and I hope you won't have either!"

"I lose it—when I think of Reyna Thayer. The old so-and-so—"

"Hush! She's due here any moment."

"Good Lord, is she sick again?"

"No. But she isn't too peppy. An illness like that drains one, you know."

It certainly had drained Reyna. She came into Gail's office wearing a brown wool redingote and, though it was late September, an atrocious brown straw hat. The color made her skin look grayer than ever.

"Old age is creeping up," she admitted cheerfully, as she took off her clothes and draped a white sheet around her.

As Gail took her blood pressure, Reyna chatted on. "I suppose you've heard that Lucienne is going to marry Doctor Kramer."

"Why no! I suspected he was making a play for Lucienne."

"On the contrary," Reyna said. "Lucienne's made a play for him! That youngster knows what she wants out of life, and she takes it, as if it were a ripe apple on a convenient limb. All the boys she's been running around with are being drafted or enlisted—and Lucienne wants her future settled right now."

So she decides on Doctor Kramer. He's up and coming, someday he'll have an important place in the hospital, and in the town."

"Oh, Reyna, it couldn't have been as deliberate as that! It isn't possible—she's too young, too romantic."

"Well, maybe she was really attracted to Kramer when she was ill. But afterwards, she certainly put on a campaign to get him. The way she took that nurse's course—"

"The curious thing is that she has the makings of an excellent nurse."

"I agree with you. At heart, Lucienne's warm and maternal—no more like the average Beauchamp debutante than the man in the moon! Well, she's got everything settled now. I wish I'd had her brains and foresight when I was a girl!"

Gail walked with her to the door. "Get plenty of rest, Reyna. A vacation would do you good."

"I'm not going anywhere now," Reyna said stubbornly. "Not until I've had it out with Cassius."

Gail sighed. "Every time I think of that trial I have nightmares."

"Don't you worry about it, honey. Why don't you come back to the house with me for dinner?"

"I'd like to, but I'm expecting Burke Gentry."

Reyna's eyes snapped. "So it didn't do any good to introduce you to Steve McCormick. You really mean to marry Gentry?"

Gail's face was bland. "Don't you think I should?"

"Not unless you enjoy playing second fiddle to his man," Reyna said tartly. "I have met the lady."

After Reyna had left, Gail tidied up her desk. Then she scrubbed and changed into a fresh blouse and a gray tweed suit. Burke should be here any moment.

Just a week ago, she and Burke, like Lucienne, had finally settled their futures. She'd met him at his office late one evening, after her duties were finished. He was finishing a brief, and she had sat down to wait for him. He looked up. "Getting bored, sweet?"

"No, not at all. . . . This is the first time I've ever been in your office, you know."

"Don't I know it!" He put down his pen, came around the desk and sat down on the arm of her chair. He said suddenly, "Gail, let's get married!"

She stared at him. "Burke Gentry! After waiting all these years, is that a proposal?"

"It's the best you'll get, sister," he said lightly. "I'm a man of few words but many deeds," he added, and proceeded to prove it.

When she caught her breath, she thought: This is it, this is what I've wanted. . . . but the excitement's gone. Have we waited too long?

The Story of the High School Organ

(Editor's Note: The senior class of WHS is now raising money for a fund with which to buy a powerful three-stop, 35-pipe unit for the pipe organ in the high school auditorium as a memorial to all WHS students who have served their country in the war. Karl J. Kay of the faculty and class advisor has given the background of the organ and told of the hopes of the class in an article which will appear in serial form in the Record-Herald.)

By KARL J. KAY

Mr. Harold Craig brought to the attention of the Committee the provision made about that time by the State Tax Commission to rebate 3 percent of the face value of sales tax stamps properly packaged for redemption. At once various contests were set up throughout the school system to scour the community for tax stamps. Mrs. Arch Ribber, whose husband was the Committee representative of the Washington Savings Bank undertook the arduous task of counting and packaging the stamps turned in. By this means alone about $1800 was raised. During the summer a local group attended a melodrama in Bryant's Show Boat on the river at Cincinnati. The ease of producing such a play, with the side income from gifts, peanuts and popcorn, and the boisterous atmosphere of good-natured fun so appealed to them that under the direction of two high school teachers, a genuine Show Boat play complete with hero, heroine and villain was produced two nights in Sunnyside Grade School auditorium here, also at Frankfort and Madison Mills. A tidy sum resulted from that project. The result of all these efforts provided the necessary funds to meet every obligation.

While the foregoing narrative may present the matter as having been relatively simple, it might add to the interest to go into a few of the legal problems involved. Naturally, since the Pilcher company knew the Citizens Committee had no legal standing and as such was not financially responsible, it was necessary for them to proceed very carefully for their own protection. At the same time, we felt that if no movement were to be made toward the construction of the organ until all the money was raised the whole project would go dead, while the actual construction and installation of the instrument would stimulate greater effort to get it paid for. Regardless of the fact that public funds were not involved, it was necessary for the Board of Education to sign a purchase order for the organ to give the transaction legal standing. A Board of Education could not legally pay interest on goods ordered by a regular purchase order, neither could they give such an order for one purchase aggregating more than $3000. Furthermore, a Board could not enter into financial negotiations involving a purchase for which payment would not be made during the lifetime of that Board, and several members of our Board were to be re-elected that year. In other words, a contract had to be entered into in the fall of the year, and our Board would not be legal on that transaction until after January 1, 1946.

These problems were finally solved as follows: The interest on the deferred payments was added to the amount of the contract, and the contract was so worded that discounts were made on all payments of $100 or more made before the end of the time limit. Second, the Company agreed to begin work on the organ when they should receive the first payment at the signing of the contract by the Chairman and Treasurer of the Citizens' Committee. A second payment was to be made by the Committee on December 1, 1939. On or after January 1, 1940 a third payment was to be sent in accompanied by a valid legal purchase order executed by the Board of Education together with the statement that public funds were on hands or in process of collection to cover the amount of the purchase even though such funds would not be used for that purpose.

The Contract was signed by Miss Gardner and Mr. Hartman November 17, 1939. The next two payments were sent on schedule time, together with the valid purchase order, properly signed by the President and Clerk of the Board of Education.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINETT

(Second Of Two Articles)

WASHINGTON—In spite of the pressure of momentous decisions concerning the war and the peace, President Truman is very busy forming his own "inner circle," many of whom will become "big names" before the voters are faced with a change or continuation of administration.

In many respects, President Truman is following the pattern of Roosevelt and numerous other predecessors in appointing intimates and trusted long-time friends to key positions in the White House. Some of these appointments have definite political significance, according to observers here; others have none, while still others are double-barreled.

One of these last is the appointment of Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, as postmaster general. Hannegan isn't actually a successor to Frank C. Walker, but really succeeds to the post of James A. Farley. It was Hannegan more than any other individual who was responsible for Truman's being named vice presidential candidate at Chicago last year.

The President and Hannegan have fought political battles in the same state. They understand each other politically and personally. The same was true in a measure of Walker and Roosevelt, but much more true of Farley and the late President. One point, however, is important: Walker wasn't ousted to make way for Hannegan. Even had Roosevelt lived, Walker would probably have departed Washington before long. For personal reasons he wanted it that way.

There are three appointments President Truman has made that are worth more than passing notice and all of them are personal.

(1) Edward D. McKim, Omaha, Neb., insurance man who served as a private in Captain Harry's "Dizzy D" battery in World War I, and now will be his chief administrative assistant—a job comparable perhaps to that held by Harry Hopkins in the previous administration.

(2) Col. Harry H. Vaughan, another World War I "buddy" who is to President Truman what the late Gen. Edwin "Pa" Watson was to Roosevelt—his military aide.

(3) Charles Ross, St. Louis Post Dispatch veteran correspondent, who was a high school classmate of the President, and will (as soon as he can break away from the San Francisco conference coverage for his paper) become Truman's Steve Early, otherwise chief of press and radio relations.

A fourth appointment generally expected here is that of former Senator, now federal district judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach, of Spokane, Wash., although in just what capacity isn't clear now. He has been mentioned for secretary of labor. As freshmen senators, Truman and Schwellenbach became fast friends and since the former took office, the judge has been a guest in Blair House, where the Truman family made its interim home, while the White House was undergoing some remodeling and repairs.

Add to these John W. Snyder, St. Louis banker, who, as new federal loan administrator, supposedly has the blessing of the Jesse Jones faction and its opponents; David E. Lilienthal, to be reappointed as director of TVA; Edwin A. Pauley, former Democratic National Committee treasurer, as a member of the International Reparations Commission.

President Truman's appointment list is growing, and with McKim, Vaughan, Ross, Schwellenbach and Hannegan, his White House "inner circle" definitely is being formed.

Wards Fur Coat Service

FUR STORAGE—safe cold protection through-out the hot months. As you know heat dries out the skins and makes them crack and tear . . . hungry moths that thrive in warm weather eat away the pelts. In Wards refrigerated vaults your furs will be safe until you need them again. And we'll insure them at your own eval-uation from fire, theft, moths and heat.

FUR CLEANING—under the direction of re-liable furriers. Just as heat and moth harm furs, so does dust. You may not be aware of it, but every fur collects millions of particles of dirt every season. These little grains bury down into the fur and soon transform it from a beau-tiful glossy coat into a dull, lifeless one. Let our cleaners restore this natural gloss and beauty to YOUR coat.

FUR REPAIRING—if your coat looks shabby and old, our expert craftsmen will turn the frayed edges, replace worn pelts with new ones, sew on buttons and do everything your coat needs to make it look new again. If you wish, they'll even remodel it into a brand new style. Let us give you an estimate. There is ab-solutely no obligation.

And, as always at Wards, the prices are exceptionally low.

WHS SPOTLIGHT IS ON SENIORS FOR ASSEMBLY

Varied Program Planned for Senior Assembly Thursday Morning

The seniors will take over the stage in the high school auditorium Thursday at 9 A. M. when the annual senior assembly is scheduled to start.

It will be a varied program—a play, music, and a presentation of an American flag to the school by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Barton Montgomery, senior president, is to preside at the assembly which is to begin with a class procession.

Mrs. Emerson Chapman, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, will give a salutation to the class after which Mrs. Allen White, auxiliary chaplain, will lead in prayer.

David Mitchell will play taps during the 30 second period of silent prayer after which Marilyn Milner, a member of the junior auxiliary, will present the flag to A. B. Murray, superintendent of city schools.

After a pledge of allegiance by the school and the singing of the first stanza of "America," Beverly Long, secretary of the class, will lead a short period of devotions.

A senior vocal ensemble, under Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning's direction, is to sing just before "The Count and the Co-ed" is presented. The production is the libretto of an operetta given at the high school 12 years ago. In it will be Birdie Boggs, Marilyn Cole; Army Arnold, Carol Armstrong; Polly McSpadden, Barbara Zimmerman; Miss Agatha Lockstep, Jean Willis; Dr. Cicero Montgomery; Mrs. McSpadden, Dixie Lou Graves; Mark Watson, Robert Dawson; Hamilton Hunter, George Hall; Sleepy Carter, William Kearney; Marjorie Blackwood, Ruth Ann Perrill; Dan Flanagan, Earl Burden. The production staff is: director, Jean Burke; electrician, Norma Burr; sound effects, Kathleen Davis; stage manager, Hal Summers; cue guard; Lois Robinson; and dramatic critic, Miss Kara L. Keck.

The senior band, under William B. Clift's baton, will follow the play. The class will sing "School Days" before Richard Babb gives the vice president's address. After the alma mater, the class recessional will end the program.

YANKS ON OKINAWA SET FOR CRUCIAL FIGHT; AIR WAR IS IN LULL

Today after steaming within 150 miles of the coast.

Forty-six Japanese planes were shot down in attacks on the carrier force and off Okinawa. Two small U. S. ships were damaged of Okinawa. Another 11 planes were shot down, four ships sunk and nine damaged in land-based aerial sweeps off either coast and down to Indo-China.

Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle was headed today for the U. S. Army Air Forces' headquarters in Washington, probably to receive a Pacific command assignment that will assure Tokyo of blows far more staggering than the one he delivered personally on April 18, 1942.

An official announcement said the stocky, 48-year-old commander of the U. S. Eighth Air Force would return to Washington "for a new assignment."

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of the Army ground forces, was quoted today by the Buffalo Courier-Express as saying "no one can tell what action Russia might take once she gets her house in order, but if she decides to make war on Japan I do not think there will be any immediate military sensations."

"It must be remembered," the newspaper quoted Stilwell as having said in an interview, "that Japan has a huge force in Manchuria, and this army will serve for a time to immobilize whatever organization the Reds will be able to concentrate in easternmost Siberia."

An 11 P. M. curfew for American and Chinese military personnel in the China theater went into effect tonight. Exceptions are Saturdays and holidays when the deadline will be midnight.

SYNTHETIC NAZI OIL PLANTS MAY LEAD TO NEW OHIO INDUSTRY

Vorsys told a reporter the Merseburg plant, third largest in Germany, already is making water gas. He said he isn't quite sure of his figures but he thinks gasoline was produced there for around 20 cents a gallon.

He said German plants used coal as a basic material and remarked that continued operation of these plants and other utilization of Germany's coal supplies seem to him about the only way the nation can pay any reparations.

He said he thinks this type of oil production has "enormous possibilities" for utilization of extensive coal deposits in the United States.

FREE TICKETS FOR THEATER WITH WAR BONDS

County Total $64,000 So Far In Seventh War Loan Drive Here

Any bond purchased between Monday and Thursday entitles the purchaser to a free ticket at the Fayette Theater, Carroll Halliday, War Finance Committee chairman, told the men and women attending a Seventh War Loan Drive workers' meeting Monday night in the common pleas courtroom.

Hoy Simons, manager of the theater, has printed special tickets to be given bond purchasers. The tickets are good for Wednesday and Thursday nights and are not transferable. The purchaser's name is to be written on the ticket.

Fayette County already has 8.6 percent of its $749,000 quota—a total of $64,000 worth of bonds purchased so far in the Seventh War Loan, Halliday announced. He said surrounding counties had from 10 to 19 percent of their quotas. He reminded the workers that in every previous drive the county had been outsold in per capita bond purchases.

At the same time, J. Roush Burton, finance chairman of the War Finance Committee, explained the advantages of each bond due offered in the drive. "To sell these bonds it is necessary to have salesmen instead of order takers," Burton said. He urged that every worker make his call-backs and see every member of the family instead of just the father or husband.

The advantages of bonds as investments, as a way to hold money for future plans—building homes, buying farms and businesses—were outlined. A "bond is just like a savings account—your money draws interest until you are ready to use it," it was explained.

Halliday outlined the individual quota—$530,000 in E bonds and $218,000 in all other issues available to individuals.

Walter Patton, city ward chairman, warned the workers against a feeling of failure and suggested individual ward meetings from time to time during the drive to check on progress. Reports are to be made to all ward and township chairmen twice a week during the drive, Halliday said.

SEVEN JURORS ARE SEATED IN KARL BECK TRIAL

Taking of Testimony Tuesday Afternoon in Bernie Beel Murder Case

Trial of Karl H. Beck, former Washington C. H. man, who served some 20 years in the Ohio Penitentiary for a series of forgeries and violations of parole, is now under way at Lebanon, for the first degree murder of Bernie Beel, also a former resident of Washington C. H.

Monday seven of the 13 jurors to be seated in the case were obtained, and of the seven four were women.

Selection of the additional jurors was started at 9 A. M. Tuesday, and it was expected the panel would be filled, opening statements made to the jury, and the taking of evidence would start Tuesday afternoon.

Prosecutor Karl Abaecherli is being assisted in the case by Dean Stanley. Beck is being defended by J. T. Riley, Franklin, and Frank C. Anderson, Lebanon.

Beck was murdered by being shot through the head while seated in his truck on a side road two miles north of Lebanon, the night of October 24. His $400 diamond ring was missing.

Beck, who strongly maintains his innocence, had been with Beel two days before the murder, admitted fleeing Beel out of $60 on a "broken down load of Canadian whiskey," which he was to move and then return the $60. Beck also admitted that he had worked the same racket many times.

After several months delay, Beck was located in Cleveland by the FBI, placed under arrest and returned to Lebanon where a first degree murder indictment was returned against him.

Arraigned on the charge January 30, Beck pleaded innocent before Judge Alton F. Brown, who is sitting in the case.
